

GOA Endorses Lou Reda for Washington County Sheriff

Sheriff Samuel Romano is retiring, leaving an open seat for the chief law enforcement officer in Washington County, Pennsylvania.

There are two candidates who have stepped forward to run, but of the two, only one is clearly the gun owners' choice.

And that person is retired Pennsylvania State Police Corporal, Lou Reda.

Lou served as a State Trooper for more than 25 years, has impeccable law-enforcement credentials, and ended his distinguished career with numerous commendations.

Lou Reda

And for Pennsylvania gun owners, Lou gets it when it comes to our Article 1, Section 21 rights.

Lou was the ONLY candidate who earned a perfect 100 percent score on GOA's sheriff survey...and that's not easy to do.

I conducted an extensive interview with Lou and had several informal conversations with him as well. I am pleased to report that if elected on November 2, Lou Reda would be a true Constitutional Sheriff and would stand up to protect your civil right to be armed.

Here is what Lou has to say in his own words:

I have been a law enforcement officer for over 3 decades and I've taken pride in the fact that I obey the law and enforce it. I do not believe that unconstitutional gun laws keep good people safe; passing new restrictions that further impede the God-given rights secured by the Second Amendment do nothing to curtail crime. We need to punish the behavior, not the object.

As an American patriot, I know what the Second Amendment is about, and it's not about hunting. I support it and I would never enforce any unconstitutional gun laws on the citizens of Washington county, nor would I ask my department administration, or the deputies under our charges to assist in furthering any unconstitutional encroachment on the rights of our citizens with respect to firearms or any other overreaching activities.

I believe in taking guns out of the hands of people that commit crimes, not out of the hands of people who are defending themselves from those same criminals.

That's why Gun Owners of America is backing Lou Reda for Washington County Sheriff.

So, in the November 2nd General Election, vote for GOA-backed Lou Reda and be sure to support his campaign.
